(iv) -Premature Ejaculation

Safe, effective treatments to treat PE

Premature ejaculation (PE) is a common sexual disorder in which a man ejaculates too soon – usually fewer than two minutes after sexual contact. PE can be distressing for men who struggle with it – but in recent years, medical innovations have made the condition highly treatable. Oral treatments such as Priligy can help men last up to three times longer during sex, while desensitising sprays applied directly to the penis offer a fast-acting solution to the condition.

(V)-Prostatic Disease Product

Benign prostatic hyperplasia often occurs with the second growth phase. As the prostate enlarges, the gland presses against and pinches the urethra. The bladder wall becomes thicker. Eventually, the bladder may weaken and lose the ability to empty completely, leaving some urine in the bladder.

It is a benign (non-cancerous) condition in which the prostate (a walnut-sized gland) enlarges in size. The prostate gland surrounds the urethra, a tube that carries urine and semen outside of the body. When the prostate gland enlarges, it can make the passage of urine and semen through the urethra a difficult process. This causes symptoms such as blocking urine outflow, frequent urge to urinate, difficulty in starting urination, dribbling at the end of urine flow, urinary tract infection etc.

In 2018, 1,276,106 new cases of prostate cancer were registered worldwide, representing 7.1% of all cancers in men. Prostate cancer incidence rates are highly variable worldwide. The age-standardized rate (ASR) was highest in Oceania and North America, followed by Europe. BPH is histologically evident in up to 90% of men by age 85 years. As many as 14 million men in the United States have symptoms of BPH. Worldwide, approximately 30 million men have symptoms related to BPH. In India, benign prostatic hyperplasia is a common elderly problem with an incidence rate of 92.97% and 93.3%. AUA guidelines suggested that BPH incidence worldwide will increase, and by the age of 60 years, more than 50% of men would have some evidence of the disease. Some data have suggested that there is decreased risk among the Asians compared to the western white population. Genetics, diet and life style may play a role here. Recent reports suggest the strong relationship of clinical BPH with metabolic syndrome and erectile dysfunction, as well as the possible role of inflammation as a cause of the prostatic hyperplasia.

There are several treatment options available for benign prostate hyperplasia. If you have been diagnosed with the condition, you might be prescribed medications such as finasteride and dutasteride, Prazosin, Terazosin & Tamsulosin, Silodosin.

(vi) Hair Loss Treatment

Effective and sustainable hair regrowth treatments

Hair loss, also known as alopecia, can have various causes and can affect both men and women. Hair loss is a very common condition, affecting over 85% of men and more than 50% of women in the world at some point in their lives. Regardless of this, hair loss is often distressing for those affected. Thankfully, hereditary hair loss is highly treatable. By using clinically proven oral or topical treatments, pattern baldness can be stopped in its tracks – and even reversed.
